NOT UNION HOURS.

Boston Globe: The soldier was telling the workman about a battle he had once been in that lasted from 6 o'clock in the morning until 7 o'clock at night. His description was most graphic, and he became very enthusiastic. "There's one thing I can't understand about the story," said the workman slowly, when he had finished. "You say that the battle began at 6 o'clock in the morning and lasted until 7 o'clock at night?"

"Yes, that's so," was the reply. "Well," retorted the workman, "the unions wouldn't stand for such hours nowadays."

SPORTSMAN WRITES COMMUNICATION IN INTEREST OF GAME

WOULD HAVE ANOTHER MEETING LIKE THAT HELD FIRST MONDAY IN MARCH.

ALSO WANTS BIG FAST

Calls Attention To The Spread That Was Prepared in Williamson County To Which Many Maury Countians Were Invited.

On the first Monday in last March there was a mass meeting of citizens held at the Court House in Columbia, which was well attended, State Game Warden, Hon. W. D. Howser, being present. Also a delegation of citizens from Williamson county.

Several fine addresses were made and amidst great enthusiasm the Maury-Williamson Fish and Game Protective Association was organized, with a president, vice-president and secretary.

The object of this organization was to further the protection and propagation of the fish and game of the state; the fullest enforcement of all the fish and game laws of the state, and the establishment of a state fish hatchery somewhere in this section of Tennessee.

Early in April the citizens of Williamson county spread a splendid banquet, at which one hundred and fifty covers were laid, and a large delegation of Columbians were present, as were Governor Rye, State Game Warden Howser and several other prominent citizens of the state, and this meeting, too, was held in the interest of the Maury-Williamson Fish and Game Protective association.

On their return home, each and everyone of the Columbia delegation promised themselves and each other that we should have another meeting at Columbia in the near future to show our appreciation of the royal treatment at Franklin and to keep up the interest and enthusiasm in the organization of this game and fish protective association. But, boys, we have all laid down on the job, haven't we? So, in the language of Uncle Nuts, "Come on boys" (for all real sportsmen are boys at heart), and let's get together and call another meeting real soon to get this organization perfected, draft a set of by-laws, rules and regulations and open books for membership and put five hundred names on the roll by the time the hunting season opens. Every sportsman in the county should and will enroll, every man that likes to fish and there are many, every man that likes to shoot, every man that loves wild life and the great open world of woods, field and stream, should enroll. And Mr. Farmer, above all others, should enroll in this very essential organization for it will prove a greater benefit to you than all others, in the protection of the birds which destroy millions of harmful insects and noxious weed seeds, that would soon multiply and ruin your crops if it were not for these some birds that we now ask you in common fairness to help perfect an organization to protect and to propagate.

While we would like very much to see a fish hatchery established in this section, if we can only perfect this organization and get its members to see to the strict enforcement of the game and fish laws in his section the fish will take care of themselves, as the beneficial results of one season's protection are very potent to any observer. And as the spawning season just past has been the best in twenty years, with a more rigid and thorough protection are streams would soon be teeming with fine food fishes as they were in our boyhood days. So, Mr. President and Mr. Secretary, let's get busy and have another rousing meeting.

EYES PUZZLE RAE.

You Can Look In Your Lover's Eyes And See Everything but Color.

New York Tribune: Rae Tanzer is certain she recognized the love light in her Oliver's eyes, but—and here's the crux of the entire case—she can't recall the color of the eyes.

She made this admission reluctantly yesterday when, as a witness in her own behalf in Federal Judge Wolverton's court, she was pressed for more details concerning the actions and methods of wooing of the "Oliver Osborne who, she since has insisted, is James W. Osborne.

"What! Do you mean to say that you don't know the color of your affianced husband's eyes?" demanded William Rand, Jr., special federal prosecutor.

"Certainly not!" was the just as emphatic reply of the diminutive defendant. "How many husbands can tell the color of their wives' eyes?" "But in the sentimental period of one's first wooing, when a girl is so infatuated with her sweetheart that she can't eat, you still think it natural that she can't recall the color of the fortunate man's eyes?" persisted the lawyer.

"The most natural thing in the world," said the girl. "One might look for hours into the eyes of a loved one and see everything in them but their color."

JUAREZ WAS A WILD TOWN.

Widest-Open Place On Earth When Villa Was In His Heyday.

New York World: War and the threat of war have sad consequences. They have shut up Juarez.

In Villa's heyday Juarez was the widest-open town on earth. Spurring vailleros rode incredible distances to sample it. The Mexican railroad brought those who had the price. The trolley line from El Paso carried throngs of people with better-lined pockets. All found action.

On a Sunday in El Paso getting a drink is a matter of knowing how. The fare to Juarez was 5 cents. It took one to a statue of a lofty, noble soul. Gen. Juarez—identified by the gringos as "Oh, some greaser"—and to a beautiful cathedral that few visited. Also to a billiard race course, several cocking mains and the huge and crowded gambling houses, out of which Villa drew his war expenses, at the rate of $2,000 a day or $1,000 a week. Which sums the player thought to be correct depended upon whether he was going or returning. Yet the boards were not more capricious than a "double-0 outfit" in New York.

The walls in Juarez are pockmarked with recent bullets. Ghostly postcards of dead Maderistas, Villistas, Huertistas, are sold. Patient, polite, long-suffering, the people, the real people, know what war is. When they leave the town it is an omen.

REGIMENT OF VETS

Men Of Spanish-American War Will Probably Get Together.

Washington Dispatch in New York World: Representative L. C. Dyer, of St. Louis, commander-in-chief of the Spanish War Veterans, said today that arrangements are being made for the immediate organization of a regiment of veterans of the war with Spain to be ready for the expected call for volunteers for service in Mexico.

"I have received a large number of letters from veteran officers and enlisted men of the Spanish war," he said. "They come from all parts of the country. Within the next few days—the business of the house permitting—I shall visit New York, Boston, Portland, Me., and other points to look after the work of organizing the first veteran regiment. It will be officered by men who have seen active military service in Cuba or the Philippines or both."

THE AWAKENING.

Youth's Companion: The woman slipped a dime into the glove of her left hand. She would be at the subway in a moment and the dime so placed would facilitate matters. As she passed the foot of the bridge extension by the city hall the ring of a coin as it struck the pavement reached her ears. She saw a dime rolling at her feet.

A fat man, subway bound, also heard and saw it. Both stooped to pick it up. She was first. His hand only fanned the dust from the sidewalk.

"I beg your pardon," he said, as he straightened up, rather red in the face. "Not at all," she said. "I thank you for your courtesy." Then she hurried downstairs.

Seated in the train her gloved hand involuntarily went to her hair. A dime dropped into her lap. Then she understood.

INDIANS OFFER SERVICES.

Graduates Of Carlisle Among Those Who Would Go to Mexico.

Milwaukee Dispatch to New York World: The Oneida reservation Indians, many of whom served in the Spanish-American war and whose fathers were civil war scouts, are organizing a company to offer their services as volunteers. They include Tom Schenadore, a former cadet captain and football player, and Jonas Wheelock, the noted Carlisle football captain, being in the number.

The Menominee Indian military company at Shawnee, organized for the diversion of the Stockbridge, Menominee and Chippewa Indians, has notified Gov. Philipp that it is ready to volunteer in case of call. Five Indians brought to Eau Claire to testify in the federal court in liquor cases enlisted today in the regular recruiting station, hoping to serve in Mexico.

WOMEN OF FRANCE ENLIST.

Army and Navy Journal: The new idea of replacing auxiliary soldiers by women specially enlisted for the purpose has given excellent results, according to a Paris dispatch to the London Times. At the depot of the Serenit Battalion of the engineering corps twenty-eight women soldiers are employed as clerks, three as storekeepers (dressed in uniform), nine as cooks and three as tailors. The experiment is being made at a number of other depots.

Cumberland University

Lebanon, Tennessee.

Five thousand men and women have been graduated from Cumberland University since its founding in 1842. Many of these have come from other states. Many from this vicinity.

Cumberland University is proud of these graduates. Many of them are now occupying positions of honor and usefulness, which they could not have attained, if they had remained at home during their years of schooling.

These young people who have obtained this success were not made of any different material than the young people now growing up in this vicinity. Your opportunities at home today are better than theirs. Cumberland University, with its increased equipment and larger faculty, offers you better opportunities today, than could be offered to them in years that have gone.

You are invited to enter Cumberland University September 13. You will find here opportunity for development to the highest point of efficiency of which you are capable. Call at the Office of the Main Building or request catalogue. 1176-cow-1214 and a hot weather necessity for all. The Summer Hammock is an institution few can dispense with therefore it is the most sensible to get a good one when you do get one. We can sell you one very low in price but it will not be as durable as our higher grades, better value for your money in the higher price kinds. They wear better and give better service generally. Therefore most economical.
